

Alaska women have stories to tell.

Alaska Women Speak is the journal devoted to their expression of ideas, literature and art.

November 19, 2018

Alaska Women Speak is seeking a Layout Editor/Layout Editing Services for its quarterly publication.

AWS, a quarterly journal, has been publishing Alaskan womens stories, poetry and art for 26 years. The journal, available in print by subscription and at 16 booksellers statewide, is a member of the International Community of Literary Magazines and Small Presses (CLMP). It is produced and managed by an all-volunteer staff.

Current Size: 32 pages, 9 ¾ x 6 ½.

Publishing Months: March, June, September, December.

Skills and Qualifications

- Ability to utilize layout software to assemble text, photographs and other content in an aesthetically pleasing and easy-to-read arrangement.
- Collaborative and relationship oriented - the layout editor works with the editing team and the printer to produce the optimal high quality product within budget and on time.
- Ability to work independently to meet deadlines.
- Strong attention to detail and ability to visualize the final product during the design process.
- Technologically proficient, especially in Indesign, and with the Submittables submission platform to access prose, poetry and visual art. Must be able to manage the AWS website.
- Basic math skills - for solving layout ratios, resizing images.

Payment

Up to $800 per year paid in quarterly installments following the production of each issue.

If interested, please submit a letter of interest and resume to akwomenspeak@gmail.com. You may also contact Carmen Davis at (907) 720-3511.

Thank you for interest in supporting Alaska's women writers!

Sincerely,

Carmen Davis

Alaska Women Speak: Telling Our Stories